

OLD SIGNS wave again. Photo made in 1964 could very well apply today. Rocky failed in '64 bid when conservative elements backed Barry Goldwater.

INDUSTRIAL GROWTH, a vital force in any nation, has been tremendously and effectively bolstered in Turkey by the U.S. foreign aid program through the Agency for International Development (AID). Turkey, with AID and American investment assistance, has built a new steel industry which provides jobs, saves more than $40 million a year in foreign exchange and supplies the needs of the developing nation. The $300-million Ereğli Iron and Steel Works, above, on the shores of the Black Sea, is 21 per cent owned by U.S. interests. It was built by a group of American contractors which also provides management advice through technicians like Bill Blevins, top left, of East Chicago, Ind. The Turkish steel mill is the largest private enterprise in the nation and the largest industrial project in the world receiving U.S. foreign aid. U.S. assistance totals $152 million worth of American machinery, equipment and services for the Ereğli mill.

SIMPLE WEDDING might call for this peasant-style wedding dress worn by Tamara Vladimirovna, the first Russian model to appear on the Paris fashion scene. The white organdy gown is from the collection of designer Louis Feraud.

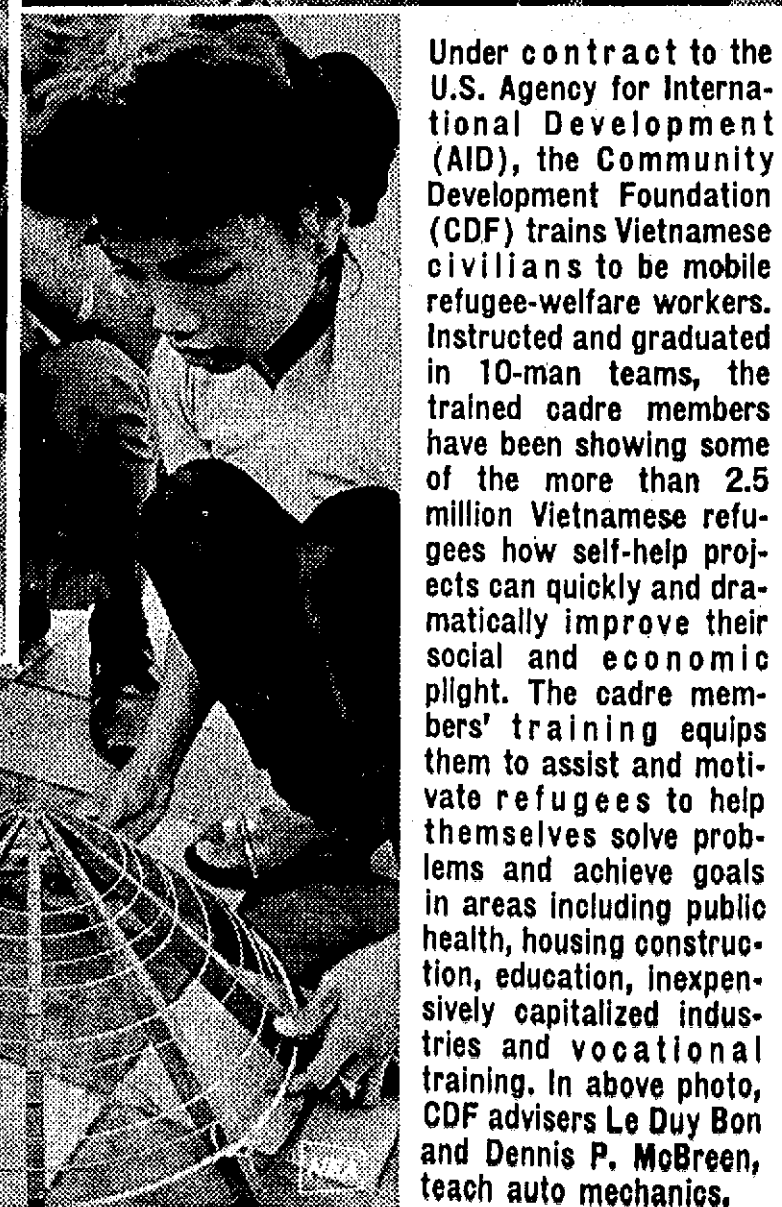

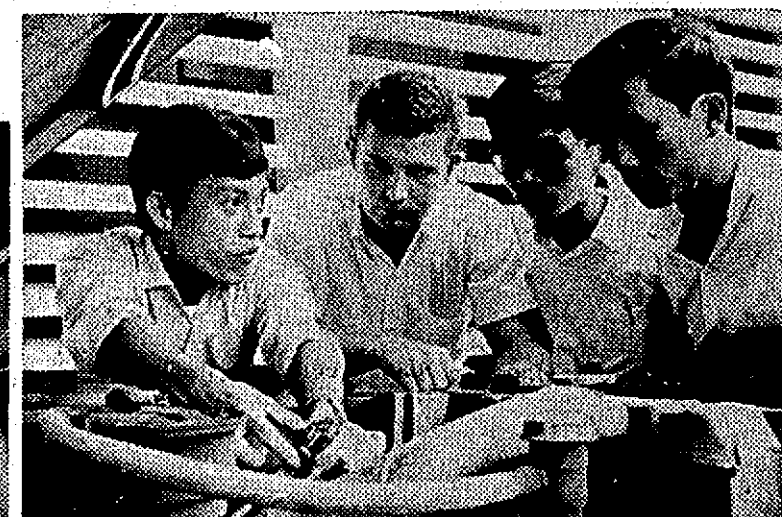

PROUD POP, actor Glenn Ford has reason to smile. His son Peter, 22, left, who just received his Bachelor of Arts degree in cinema from the University of Southern California, is making his motion picture debut in a film starring his dad.

Refugee Self-help

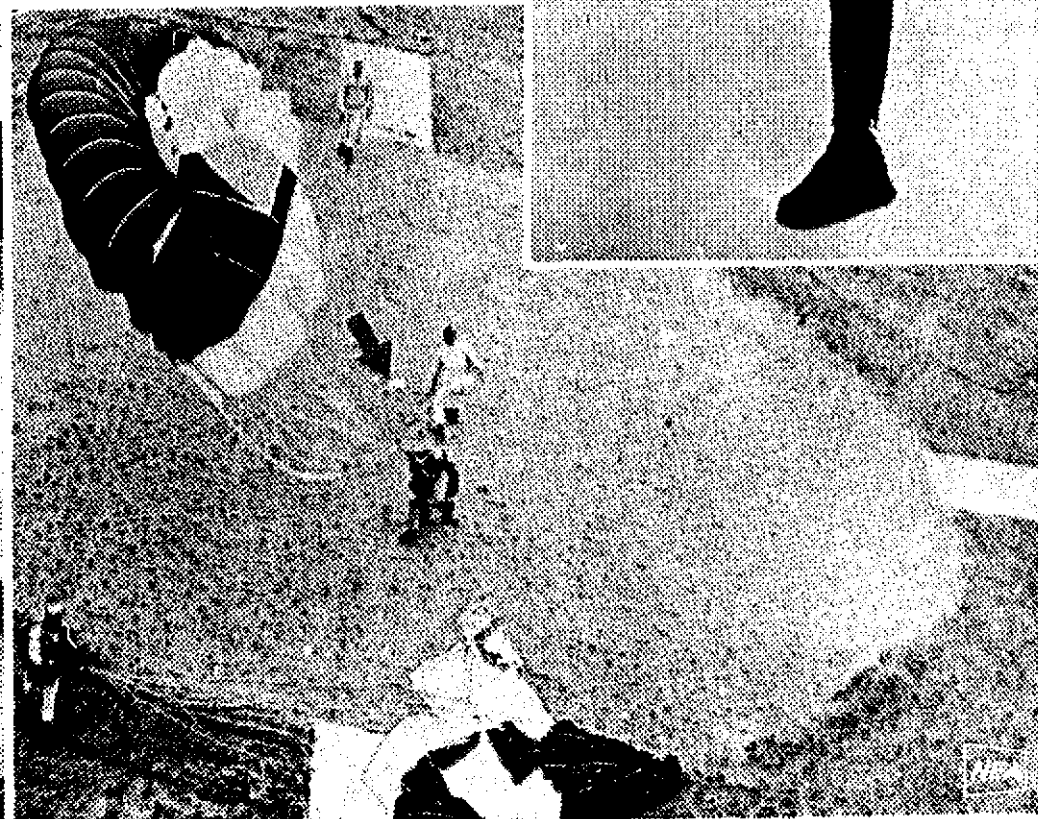

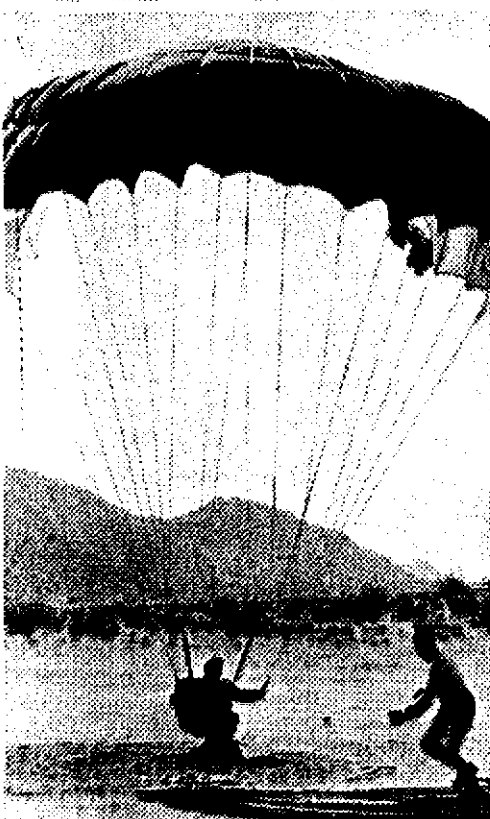

Carpentry is one of many vital trades taught refugees by CDF-trained mobile welfare teams.

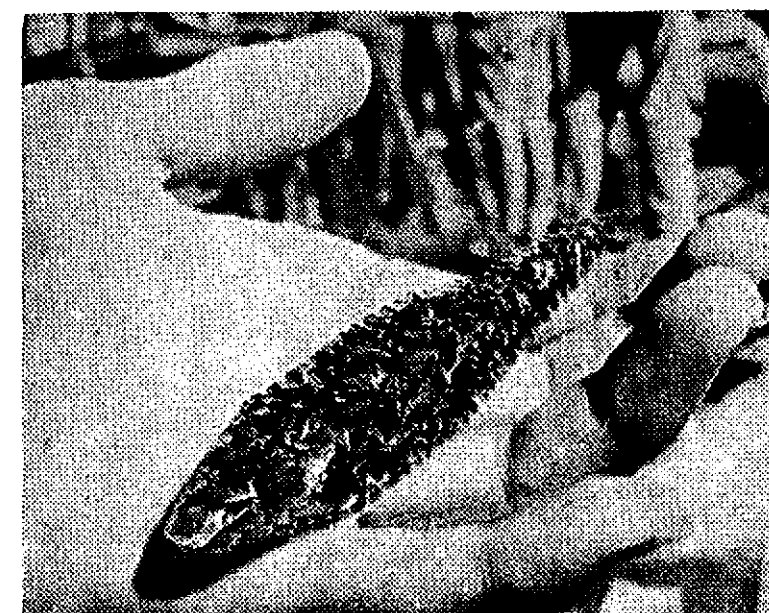

A Vietnamese woman engaged in the ancient art of hat-making from palm fronds. Through self-help, refugees regain their self respect and hope for the future.

Under contract to the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID), the Community Development Foundation (CDF) trains Vietnamese civilians to be mobile refugee-welfare workers. Instructed and graduated in 10-man teams, the trained cadre members have been showing some of the more than 2.5 million Vietnamese refugees how self-help projects can quickly and dramatically improve their social and economic plight. The cadre members' training equips them to assist and motivate refugees to help themselves solve problems and achieve goals in areas including public health, housing construction, education, inexpensively capitalized industries and vocational training. In above photo, CDF advisers Le Duy Bon and Dennis P. McBrean, teach auto mechanics.

TWISTING, TURNING, PLUMMETING ever downward, the U.S. Army skydiving team, The Golden Knights, is the elite among parachutists. Members are continually perfecting their style and accuracy, each averaging 700 jumps a year as compared to the 150 performed by civilian jumpers. Style jumps are judged by maneuvers done during free fall from an altitude of 6,000 feet. On accuracy jumps, the parachutist leaves the plane at 3,000 feet and attempts to land on a four-inch disc (arrow) in the target area.

ANCIENT ARTIFACTS that may date back 3,000 years were discovered when construction workers unearthed an Indian burial ground and garbage dump on California's Tiburon Peninsula. Spear point, left, and shell beads were among items said to relate to similar findings that have been dated by radio-carbon analysis to go as far back as 4,400 years.

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) —
In Hollywood, they're used to seeing movie companies shooting in the streets. They attract about as much attention as a knee-cap in a topless show.

So there wasn't much of a crowd on Selma Avenue to watch Gary Lockwood shooting a scene in "The Model Shop." It's a pity, too, because this is almost a historic picture. But the citizens were very nonchalant about it, when they should have been at least a little chafant.

What makes "The Model Shop" important is that it is a reverse runaway production. Around this town, runaway filming—Hollywood companies going to Europe to make movies—is the big worry. It's depriving our local boys of jobs. But "The Model Shop" is a new twist. A Frenchman is making a movie here.

And he's not just any Frenchman, but one of the cream of the French film industry. Jacques Demy. He's the man who directed "The Umbrellas of Cherbourg."

He came to Los Angeles and saw something, apparently, that the rest of us have missed. He thinks it is beautiful. And he couldn't wait until he found a story that he could shoot here.

So there he was, on Selma Avenue, making a movie. Every city has a Selma Avenue or its equivalent. It is the street just off Main Street, where the stores are a little run down and the people are the same way.

"It photographs so beautiful," Demy said. He was doing a scene where Gary Lockwood drives up in front of a camera store and goes inside. The camera car followed Gary in his sports car around the block, with the police handling the traffic arrangements.

To the average eye, it all looked a bit on the seedy side, but Demy saw it as beautiful. Wait until he sees our slums; he'll faint in an aesthetic swoon.

"I would like to do more films here," he said. "Or even maybe move here. But I doubt it. The system you have is bad."

"The American movie people do things like they did 40 years ago, and they will not change. The airplane has changed, the car has changed, but that (he pointed to the camera) is exactly the same as they used 40 years ago. I wanted to use a new one, but they wouldn't let me. I did manage to get permission to use new lights, quartz lights, but only after a very long fight."

At the lunch break, Gary and I went to one of the beautiful sandwich shops around the corner. We talked about his career, which got a big boost with his appearance in Stanley Kubrick's magnificent, "2001: A Space Odyssey." But Gary is still not satisfied with the speed with which he is approaching stardom.

"If I split with my old lady," he says, "and got into a big jam with some chick, man, my career would go way up. That's the way this world is."

And we talked about violence and guns, which have replaced mini-skirts and gurus as Conversational Topics A and B in the Hollywood whirl.

"I'm pessimistic about the state of the world," Gary said. "One of these days somebody is going to drop that H-bomb. That's what comes from living in a violent society."

"But I'd give up my guns tomorrow—if everyone else would."

Gary objects to people pigeon-holing all the young hippies as potentially violent.

"Just because a kid wears his hair long," he says, "that doesn't mean he's violent. He may just want to be left alone to do his thing."

Then it was back to glorious Selma Avenue and more shooting.

SMITH'S GROCERY

NEA

The independent neighborhood grocer appears to be on the way out, according to statistics furnished by the Progressive Grocer. In the 10-year period 1956-66, the number of unaffiliated independent grocery stores declined by 11 per cent while chain supermarkets and co-operative groups increased. Fastest growing segment of food retailing is the convenience or "bantam" store which has been accepted by consumers throughout the nation because of its accessible location, longer hours, drive-in facilities and rapid checkout.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Dentures, Unfortunately, Are Not Forever Things

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: Could you tell me why my upper denture keeps breaking?

ANSWER: Dentures break for lots of reasons, and strangely enough bouncing them on the tile bathroom floor is not the most common.
I mention this first only because, except for flushing a denture down the toilet, the most traumatic experience for denture wearers is that sickening, heart-stopping moment when the denture slips out of soapy hands and bounces endlessly and hopelessly around the floor, especially if you don't have a spare in your bureau drawer.

Most fractures occur in the mouth and are due to poorly fitting dentures and unbalanced "bite." They may have been perfect when first made, but dentures are not forever things. They wear and are affect in other ways by ravages of use and age. This, combined with shrinkage of underlying bone and gums, produces excessive torque on the denture base which finally gives way.

Simple repair is not enough.
To prevent recurrence, dentures require bite adjustment and sometimes rebasing.

Another major factor affecting frequency of denture fractures is how the teeth are worn. A passive, pleasant pusillanimous Mr. Milquetoast rarely if ever breaks his false teeth. But Mr. Big, the tough guy who chews nails and spits rust has a high fracture rate.

The best thing for Mr. In-between to do is to see his dentist regularly and frequently for examination and denture adjustment.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE:

SOME PINCH!

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — A 1.3-million-pound "pinch" of salt might seem to be a contradiction in terms, but that's how much salt is used each year to season the wide variety of cookies and crackers produced at National Biscuit Co.'s big new bakery here.

The huge bakery, which has three 300-foot-long ovens, produces some 65 million pounds of cookies and crackers annually. In addition to that huge pinch of salt, it uses 47 million pounds of flour and 8 million pounds of sugar a year.

Barber Tied for Second

CHICAGO (AP) — Two professional golfers from Arkansas had problems Thursday with the back nine in the Western Open Golf Tournament, but both are up among the leaders starting today's second round. Miller Barber of Texarkana shot a 4-under-par 67 despite a 37 on the back nine. Barber is tied for second place with Terry Dill. Jack Nicklaus is the leader at 65. R. H. Sikes of Springdale shot a 40 on the back nine but still came in with a 1-over-par 72.

Wilt a Gift or Plague for L.A.?

'Sometimes one coach is too much. Two coaches are way too many.'

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK (NEA) — To some, having Wilt Chamberlain on your basketball team is a gift topped only by gold, frankincense and myrrh. Others, however, equate it later.

Butch van Breda Kolff, a man of balanced disposition, is field general of the Lakers. How will he respond to Wilt Chamberlain, frustrated free-throw shooter and coach?

"We will start from had no problems. Time will tell whether things'll change this season."

Van Breda Kolff is looking only at the bright side. His first response to the news that Chamberlain had become a Laker was: "We'll have a much better chance of getting rebounds." It was that concise.

He feels Wilt can help the straight through him—when he drives."

A passing, picking and cutting game, which Van Breda Kolff favors, will be enhanced. Wilt is one of the better passers in the game, if no other reason than he has a towering vantage point when holding the ball aloft, and hits open teammates.

So Wilt can help the Lakers. But Van Breda Kolff believes, the Lakers can help Wilt, too. The coach plans to give Wilt respite during games. Often, Wilt has played the full 48 minutes. Van Breda Kolff feels Wilt will be stronger and more effective with brief rest periods.

"Then there's the thing about his free throws," said Van Breda Kolff. "What did he shoot, 37 per cent last year? I think he should still shoot underhanded, but not with that wrist action. He should just shoot them straight. I'm taking even bets that his free-throw shooting will be 50 per cent next year I'm taking odds on 60 per cent. And no, I haven't been bombarded with calls from takers."

With three superstars, some wonder if the Lakers will ever lose.

"I admit there is pressure on us to win now," said the coach. "But if we lose games, we lose games. It won't make me any grayer. So I lose a job. I'll just send my kids out to work."

"But right now I'm the coach and that's that. As I've told my players, sometimes one coach is too much. Two coaches are way too many."

The 'Nitty-Gritty' Way

MONTICELLO, N.Y. — (NEA) — Hank Stram concedes that toughness and discipline may be becoming extinct in ordinary youngsters these days but not so in football players. The Kansas City Chiefs' head coach has spent part of his summer teaching aspiring young backs and linemen the advantages of participating in a Spartan game.

He has been assisted by three college coaches—Vince Dooley (Georgia), Ray Graves (Florida) and Tom Cahill (Army). For instructors, he used Len Dawson, Buck Buchanan, Curtis McCClinton, Johnny Robinson and Fred Arbanas.

Stram had 220 boys from across the country enrolled for a week at the National All Sports Camp at Kutsher's Country Club. It cost the boys' parents $125 to send Junior to upstate New York to learn how to deflect passes and ward off blockers. But mostly, they learned toughness and discipline.

"Our main theme is realizing the importance of hard work," says Stram, "and the execution of fundamentals. The best way to learn is through discipline. You find people using a lot of fancy words that have no great deal of significance, but which are used to justify some of the things kids can get away with these days. Anything goes just so it has the right terminology applied to it."

"We've learned that people—most of the time—will not do any more than they have to. But while they may give the impression of resenting authority, people with talent realize they can't be successful, especially in a game like football, without discipline. They respect and appreciate it and feel they've accomplished something when they respond to it."

How fast is fast? It all depends on whether you're trying to drive from Grand Central to Penn Station in New York during the rush hour or trying to win the pole position at Langhorne Speedway. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Good Deal for Crutcher

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
SPORTS EDITOR
NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSOCIATION

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (NEA) — When Phil Bengtson, the new coach of the Green Bay Packers, called, Tommy Joe Crutcher was out in the fields planting maize on the 1,000 acres he owns outside McAllen, Tex., in the Rio Grande Valley.

He knew it wasn't sociable because new coaches don't call reserve linebackers as a primary order of business, especially when the world champion Packers already had the best starting set of linebackers ever put together on one football team.

"I just want you to know," said Phil, "before you see it in the papers, that you're going to the New York Giants. I think it's a good deal for us—and for you."

"And I agreed with him," noted Tommy reflectively, as he ripped the tape off his ankles in the gym of Fairfield University after a session with his new team.

"I really wanted to be traded. I intended to ask 'em to trade me. But then I wondered and thought all about that championship money I been collectin' and if I wouldn't say later, 'Look what I forced myself into.'"

In his four full seasons with the Packers, Tommy Joe played on three world championship teams. From divisional playoffs, league title games, a pair of Super Bowls and three All-Star game appearances, he banked additional dividends of $70,000, a sum that can force a fair amount of introspection.

Even if the Giants have already staked out the left linebacker's spot on the defensive platoon to Crutcher, the fact remains they're a team which hasn't won anything since 1963. And now playing in a division with Dallas and Washington, no one's going to gamble the mortgage on them this year.

The major benefits of Tommy Joe's change will accrue to his psyche. Frustration and rejection are erosive factors when a guy's got to be the spare wheel behind Ray Nitschke, Dave Robinson and Le Roy Caffey.

"I never played the left side (his spot with the Giants)," he mused, "because Dave never got hurt. When Nitschke was hurt, Caffey moved into the middle and I played some in Lee Roy's position. Last season I played all the San Francisco game, most of Chicago and Minnesota games."

"But I wasn't good enough to beat them out—not really, no. When Lee Roy or Ray came back, I sat down." In three NFL championship games and two Super Bowls, he never got in for a play with the defensive platoon. He did hustle with the special kicking teams on punts and kickoffs, and that grated after awhile, too.

"I got to be an old man going down on kicks," said Tommy. "That's for rookies and stuff, and I already got four years in this league and need only three games this season to qualify for the pension."

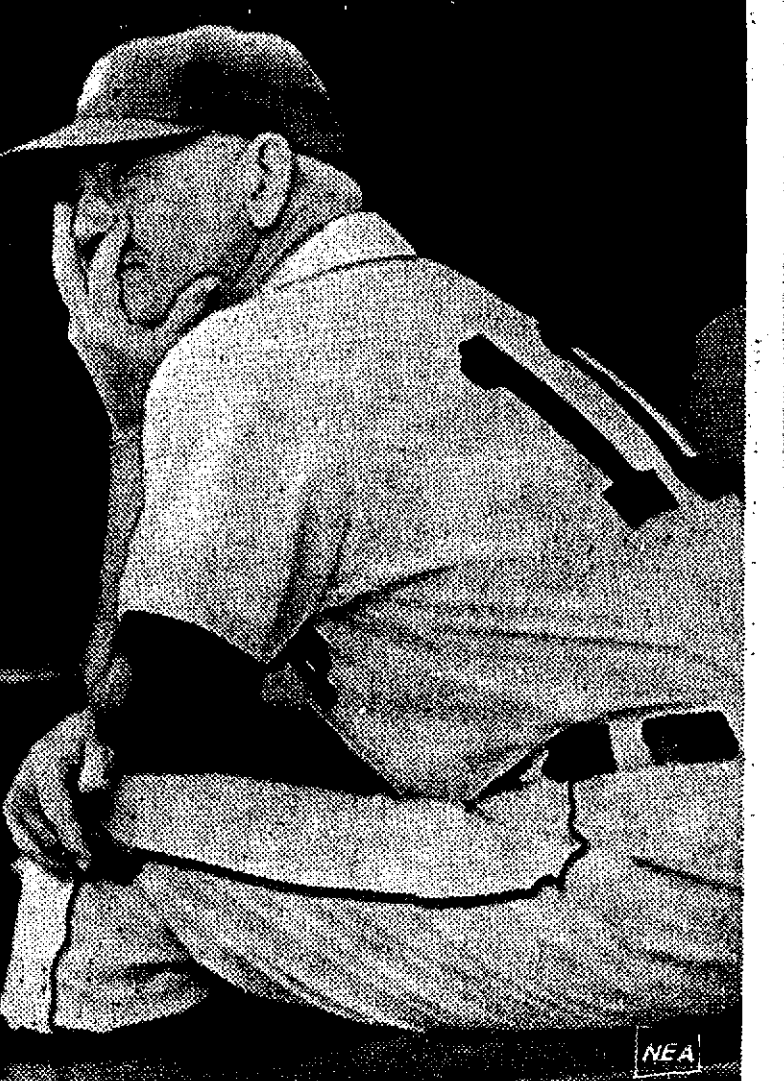

"Another thing—people don't stay in this league too long as reserves. So coming to the Giants ought to put at least a couple of years on my career."

Tommy liked the smallness of Green Bay and what he calls "the class" of the Packer organization.

"They don't pull any cheap stuff," he said. "They don't get in any dirty ticks. And they never knocked an official. I like what I see around here, too. And I kind of look forward to being in New York."

It'll give him a chance to play, and more.

"I'm a bachelor," he smiled shyly.

PAPER TIGERS? could well be the question in Detroit manager Mayo Smith's mind as Baltimore, Cleveland and Boston gain in the AL race.

Letters From Home

A recent editorial in The Montgomery Advertiser suggested that congressmen tend to "assume that those (people back home) who don't write (letters) don't care." If this is so, then the congressmen are foolish. People often don't bother writing to their congressmen; yet they feel very deeply about certain issues of the day. One reason why people neglect to write is that they sometimes think congressmen know everything — an erroneous assumption if ever there was one.

President Johnson himself, for that matter, doesn't fully understand the principles of nuclear fission; he doesn't know all there is to know about redwood forests in California, or cigarette smoking, or the subtle intricacies of Bulgarian politics. No man alive knows everything; that's why the President has advisers, and why the President's advisers have advisers, and why congressmen need assistants and letters from home.

Today's world is incredibly diversified, and there are only 24 hours in a day. If legislators spent all the time required to keep abreast of every development in every area, there would never be any legislation proposed or adopted. Letters from constituents supply a vital need. We think most congressmen recognize this, and we hope most Alabamians do. Certainly, if they don't, they should. — Birmingham (Ala.) News

No Room To Stand

Something to worry about is always available. When the threat of the bomb seems to diminish temporarily, there's the promise that over-population will accomplish the same grim end.

Up to now the population menace has been projected in terms of universal starvation. But a physicist foresees not a lack of food, but of space. By 2028, he fears, our great-grandchildren will be so numerous they will all be squeezed to death. The trouble is that the professor seems to be considering only the dry land. Three-fourths of the surface of the earth, however, is covered with water, and if man runs out of elbow room, he can always go to sea.

Indeed, this trend has already started. Thousands have escaped weekend highway jams by switching from autos to boats. Skin-diving, too, has become a big thing among those who want to get off crowded beaches. The professor might also consider the example of Holland, which has reclaimed hundreds of square miles of land from the sea. But it is possible that those great-grandchildren will not have too much need for space on earth. By 2028 they may be moving to the moon, muscling in on Mars, vacationing on Venus, jumping off to Jupiter. In fact, nothing would seem to be more hazardous than guessing about what the future of (Ga.) is going to be like. — Macon (Ga.) News

Purcell Fears for 2-Party System

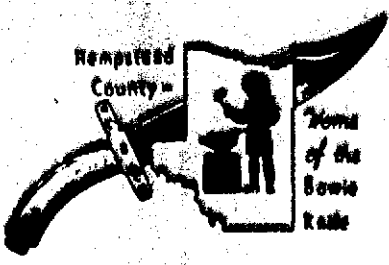

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A brief filed with the state Supreme Court says a recent decision by Conway County Chancellor Richard Mobley could lead to the downfall of the two-party system in the state.

The brief, filed by Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell, questions Mobley's ruling that Act 68 of 1965 is unconstitutional. Independent candidates, under the act, are required to pay a ballot fee equal to the largest fee required by a political party for filing for the same position in that party's primary.

The law was challenged by Jerry Mahan, an independent candidate for sheriff of Conway County in 1966. He had to pay a $800 filing fee although it cost Democratic and Republican nominees only $3 to get on the general election ballot. Mahan said the law was discriminatory and Mobley agreed.

The brief says, however, that the Democratic nominee had to pay $800 and $3 to get on the general election ballot because he had to get on the primary ballot first.

Unfortunately, Many Wear Sunglasses for Frivolous Reasons

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

This summer Arkansians will spend several thousands of dollars on sunglasses. They will pay from $.98 to $25.00 and up per pair. Many of those purchased will be of good quality, but substandard sunglasses represent a large share of those sold.

According to the National Safety Council there are several reasons for the boom in sunglasses. We like to think that colored lenses are worn solely for medical reasons, to prevent eye exposure to strong sun and glare, and to contribute to relaxation of the muscles of the eyelids and facial muscles.

This, unfortunately, is not always the case. Very often sunglasses are worn according to the dictates of fashion, to glamorize; for that "Hollywood look," to hide the fact that advancing age requires corrective lenses. When worn for such frivolous reasons eye injury may result and imperfect lenses may cause muscular and nervous fatigue because the eye must continually accommodate to these imperfections.

According to medical authorities, sunglasses should only be worn to prevent possible injury to the eyes because of light intensity. In the case of certain diseases, eye specialists will prescribe dark glasses.

Sunglasses are available with three distinct types of lenses. Polarizing lenses absorb the glare of certain light rays. Such lenses reduce car hood and road glare and also enables the boating enthusiast, fisherman, and swimmer to see beneath the water's surface.

Coated or reflectorized lenses are coated with a thin metallic film applied to one or both sides of the lenses. These can be purchased in varying shades of intensity of color. Those light in the center and dark at both the top and bottom are useful for boating and driving where there is both overhead and low-level glare. Coated lens, designed to reduce overhead glare only, can be purchased.

Absorptive lens contains a chemical substance that acts to filter out specific light rays from the spectrum. Through the action of these lenses, the eyes are protected from dangerous ultraviolet and infrared rays. Sunglasses with either of these types of lenses are effective, but the most efficient combines all three principles.

The National Safety Council encourages the would-be purchaser of sunglasses to exercise care in his selection. The best lens, he is optically ground and polished like the lenses in prescription glasses and are free of lines, blurs, or bubbles. Good quality plastic lenses have the advantage of being shatter-resistant, light-weight and less expensive, but they require greater care in handling to prevent scratching.

In general, a neutral gray tint is the best. A green tint is a good choice. Amber or yellow lens tend to sharpen contrast and is effective on flat, hazy days. A larger lens offers the greatest surface protection. Clip-on sunglasses are usually too small to give adequate protection from glare and can increase the problem of lens reflections of light from the face and from behind the wearer.

Despite the foregoing paragraph, "clip-on's" are the kind of sunglasses this writer uses, and the kind that will be used frequently during the next two weeks vacation.

A Small Twig Caused It All

WESLACO, Tex. (AP) — A sparrow that dropped a small twig at an electrical station caused a 26-minute power failure Thursday in the business district and a residential area of this Rio Grande Valley city.

Dick Norlon, manager of Central Power and Light Co., said when the twig hit an insulator it caused a 69,000-volt flashover which destroyed three insulators.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shireman of Jacksonville.

U.S. Marine With Enemy Shot Down

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A U.S. Marine investigation is reported to have decided that a white man killed by a U.S. reconnaissance patrol in a clash with an enemy squad was a young Leatherneck missing since 1965.

Marine sources said the shabbily dressed figure was shot at less than 20 yards as he led an enemy charge. They said as he fell he cried out, "Help me help me!"

Four survivors of the patrol, shown photographs of missing Marines, picked out the picture of the 18-year-old Leatherneck whom the investigation finally centered on.

Marine sources gave this account:

The Marine patrol was operating about nine miles south of Phu Bai on July 15 and stopped for lunch. Shortly after noon, one of the nine Marines saw a 15-man North Vietnamese unit approaching through heavy underbrush.

The leader was young, with pointed Caucasian features, fair skin, and blond hair.

The startled Americans held their fire until the enemy was only 20 yards off and more North Vietnamese had come into view.

The mystery man fell under the first Marine volley. The Marines were outnumbered and one of them was killed when another enemy squad appeared, so the Leathernecks broke off the fight and called in a helicopter to take them out.

Eight Counties Behind in Assessments

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Assessment Co-ordination Division said Thursday that property assessments had fallen below the legal minimum of 18 per cent of fair market value level in 8 counties, and the counties had been notified to raise their assessments by Dec. 31.

The division said that a drop below the legal minimum endangers a county's state turn-back funds.

Joe T. Burlingame, director of the division, said Howard County was the lowest with a 14 per cent ratio. He said Woodruff County was a 15 per cent; Conway, Pope and Van Buren counties at 16 per cent, and Calhoun, Drew and Franklin counties at 17 per cent each.

Burlingame said a portion of all turn-back to the 8 counties would be impounded next year unless they raise their assessments.

2,000 Mexican Students Battle Police

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — More than 2,000 government troops and riot police faced an angry band of 500 students in Mexico City Thursday night as week-long student demonstrations continued. But there was no repetition of last Monday's bloody fighting.

The troops allowed the youths to shout their grievances against government violation of university autonomy.

Earlier Thursday an estimated 75,000 to 85,000 persons made a 10-mile march to protest the government's sending troops into a University of Mexico preparatory school Monday to clear out youthful rioters.

Traditionally in Latin America, universities are off limits to the police and the armed forces. Small bands of teenage boys harassed police in scattered parts of the city early today, but there were no serious disturbances.

During the big afternoon march, troops and tanks stayed out of the sight of the marchers. The students themselves kept the march peaceful by ejecting anyone who tried to stir up trouble.

Meanwhile, five members of the Mexican Communist party were turned over to judicial authorities on charges of sedition, conspiracy and property damage during the mob violence that began last Friday.

A government spokesman said the Communists took advantage of young students and turned peaceful demonstrations into the worst violence in Mexico City since revolutionary days 50 years ago. By Monday night it had escalated to a pitched battle between troops backed by tanks and students armed with Molotov cocktails.

Another U.S. Marine Unit Hard Hit

By GOERGE ESSE

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops, spraying tear gas, invaded a small U.S. Marine radio relay station overlooking the abandoned Khe Sanh combat base and killed six Americans and wounded 11 others, military spokesmen reported today.

It marked the third time in recent days that a small Marine unit suffered heavy losses in the northern provinces. Fourteen Marines were killed and 22 wounded in two engagements south of Da Nang Thursday.

The stepped-up enemy activity has lent support to intelligence predictions of an attack within the next month or two against Da Nang, headquarters of U.S. Marines in South Vietnam.

Marine headquarters announced in a delayed report that a North Vietnamese force of unknown size launched the attack on the Hill 950 radio relay station late Thursday night with mortars and grenades.

Early Friday morning, the enemy seized a landing zone for helicopters supplying the isolated outpost and then went on to penetrate the Marines' perimeter.

The Marine defenders counterattacked, driving out the North Vietnamese and retaking the helicopter landing zone. They reported killing five enemy, and capturing four rifles and four satchel charges.

Hill 950 overlooks Khe Sanh, which underwent a 77-day siege last winter and was abandoned in June in favor of a more mobile Marine force along the western flank of the demilitarized zone.

Below Khe Sanh, in the enemy stronghold of A Shau Valley, a light observation helicopter checking on enemy infiltration routes was downed by ground fire. The two-man crew was rescued by another helicopter, but a third chopper, one of a number of aircraft sent in to provide cover, was hit by ground fire and exploded. Two crew members were killed and two others wounded.

Far south near the Cambodian border, U.S. jets, artillery and helicopters destroyed two oxcarts loaded with 30 to 40 big Russian-made 122mm rockets, the type used to shell Saigon in two enemy offensives earlier this year.

A U.S. spokesman said an observation helicopter spotted the oxcarts about 47 miles northwest of Saigon. The attacking aircraft zeroed in on the carts and set off a string of secondary explosions.

It was one of several reported interceptions across South Vietnam of war material destined for enemy troops presumably gathering strength in the long general lull in ground fighting.

Helicopter gunships reported sinking six sampans, believed to have been carrying arms, after a shootout with Viet Cong gunners aboard the craft in Long An Province, just south of Saigon.

In the northern province of Thua Thien, 101st Air Cavalry Division troops turned up a 2½-ton cache of armament, including mortars and 20,000 rounds of small arms ammunition.

Czechs Claim They Held Their Own

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal Communist leaders assured their countrymen Thursday night that they held their own at the showdown meeting with the Russians, but thousands of demonstrators in Prague expressed skepticism.

News that the Prague leaders had agreed to meet the four other Soviet bloc opponents of their policies brought demands from demonstrators that the new talks include Romania and Yugoslavia, who support the liberalization course.

The meeting will be held Saturday in Bratislava, the capital of Slovakia, and the Russians also will attend.

The doctor's wife, Elizabeth McComas, is one of the New Mexico delegates to the Republican National Convention where there will be plenty of elephant symbols.

Methodists Plan Youth Activity Week

Youth Activities Week, or as the Methodist Church youth call it, "Happening: 1968" begins this Sunday night at the First United Methodist Church of Hope. It is a four-day series of programs, recreation, discussion groups, and other activities, designed with the high school youth of the church in mind.

Featured speakers for this "Happening: 1968" are Rev. F. Gladwin Connell, Assistant Secretary of the State Methodist Interboard Council and former Associate Pastor of First Church at Hope, and Rev. David B. Wilson, pastor of the First United Methodist Church at DeQueen.

Connell's main topic for the week, "The Issue is Change," deals with familiarizing the church's young people with the changes that have been made in Methodist church organization and doctrine in recent months. And he will further discuss the issue of change in today's world, and how it affects the outlook and ideas of the Church. Connell will be featured speaker for Sunday through Tuesday nights, and will also bring the message, "Is There A Murder Here?" from the pulpit at the regular Sunday evening worship service.

Rev. Wilson and a group of youth from the DeQueen Methodist Church will be featured on Wednesday night. They will present a program including a sermon by Wilson, "Looking For Life," which will be illustrated by dramatic segments featuring the DeQueen youth. All young people from other churches are especially encouraged to be present for this program. The week's activities will close with the celebration of the Lord's Supper, also on Wednesday night.

Swimming and bowling parties, as well as lively discussion groups and folksinging, are also planned as part of the week's activities. All Methodist high school youth are urged to attend Sunday evening at 5:30 p.m., Monday and Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., and Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Suit to Block Group at Convention

SEATTLE (AP) — A suit seeking to block the seating of Washington's delegation to the Democratic National Convention was filed in federal court Thursday by backers of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

The suit contends that the process by which the 23 delegates and four alternates were chosen violated the constitutional rights of McCarthy supporters under the 1st, 9th and 14th amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

Paul Pedersen, state chairman of McCarthy's campaign, and seven others filed the 30-page complaint.

Named as defendants were the state's top Democrats, including Sens. Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, its five congressmen and former Gov. Albert D. Rosellini.

The suit alleges that supporters of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey allowed two contested delegations at the state convention to vote on their own seating, and contends that convention officials and committees failed to abide by their own rules of procedure.

Washington's delegation to the Chicago convention lists 32½ votes for Humphrey, 9½ for McCarthy and five undecided.

Official Vote Shows Gains for Boswell

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Certified vote tabulations from 58 of the state's 75 counties Friday tightened the ever so close race for the No. 2 spot in the Democratic gubernatorial runoff even more.

Based on the certification in the 58 counties and assuming no change in the unofficial totals in the other 17, Mrs. Virginia Johnson has 85,930 votes and Ted Boswell 85,625—a margin of 305 votes.

Prior to certification, Mrs. Johnson's unofficial lead had been 505 votes.

Certification of the vote in other counties should be available today but the results will not be official until early next week.

Boswell showed a net gain of 440 votes in the 58 certified counties while Mrs. Johnson picked up 227 votes. Boswell's biggest gain was in Pulaski County where the adjusted figures gave him 19,256 votes—a net gain of 225 votes. Mrs. Johnson polled 7,991 votes in Pulaski County.

J. P. "Sonny" Lybrand, executive secretary of the state Democratic party, urged election officials in all counties to send their certified counts to Little Rock as quickly as possible.

"We've got several close races and we need to get the second primary ballot printed as soon as possible to mail it out to absentee voters," Lybrand said.

State Rep. Marion Crank of Foreman, who led the Democratic gubernatorial ticket, will appear on television station KTHV's "Face the State" Sunday.

He will begin a series of regional rallies Tuesday at Clarksville. Other rallies will be at Benton Wednesday, El Dorado Thursday, Springdale Friday and Jonesboro Saturday.

Polsters Say Wallace May Be Factor

NEW YORK (AP) — Top polsters George H. Gallup Jr. and Louis Harris say that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller "has now moved to an open lead" over Democratic presidential candidates Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

They also said in a joint statement Thursday that Richard M. Nixon would run an "extremely close" race in a contest involving Humphrey and third party candidate George C. Wallace, "with Wallace perhaps holding the balance."

Gallup and Harris disclosed these conclusions after their most recently published polls, taken in July, were in apparent contradiction and created considerable political repercussions in Miami Beach, Fla. for their national convention.

Gallup and Harris said two key factors accounted for the apparent disparity in the polls: the time at which the polls were taken and the margin of error built into the sampling process. "Public opinion changes over time, and each was an accurate reflection at the time it was taken," they said.

The Gallup Poll, published Monday and based on interviews between July 19 and 21, showed Nixon defeating both Humphrey and McCarthy while Rockefeller was only able to tie them. The Nixon camp cheered this survey.

Then the Harris Poll, based on interviews taken July 26-29, became available Wednesday night and showed Rockefeller could prevail over either of the Democratic hopefuls while Nixon could not. Rockefeller supporters cheered.

The Gallup-Harris statement further buoyed the Rockefeller camp, for the New York Republican has based his campaign to upset Nixon for the GOP nomination on convincing delegates that he is more popular with the voters than Nixon.

Harris and Gallup said their joint statement was issued in an effort to eliminate what they considered to be widespread confusion over the polls.
